Following publication of the original article [1], an error was identified under Description of the intervention: overview of the web-based self-learning program.

The sentence currently reads:

We designed an outline of the web-based self-learning program, which included six modules for acquiring knowledge and skills related to local healthcare planning based on adult learning theory [31], a review of the relevant Japanese literature [14],

The sentence should read:

We designed an outline of the web-based self-learning program, which included six modules for acquiring knowledge and skills related to local healthcare planning based on adult learning theory [31], a review of the relevant Japanese literature [13],

The original article [1] has been corrected.
